

Diana Danziger

Executive Coach

London- UK

Language

- English
- Conversational German

About Me

I'm American and have lived in Europe most of my life. I love learning in all its forms and consider it one of my hobbies. I love travel my partner and our dog live in the US. They will be joining me in London permanently soon

About Work

My experience and expertise are in the areas of leadership and organizational development, encompassing work with individuals, and my own development in this area has been growing for 20 years.

I believe above all, coaching is a conversation and a relationship. Like all the best conversations, it requires dialogue and listening. And as with all constructive relationships, it involves creating an environment where support and challenge can be used positively to maximize potential. Coaching encompasses the art and science of working with an individual. Coaching can include using my knowledge and experience as examples and additional “food for thought” for the individual